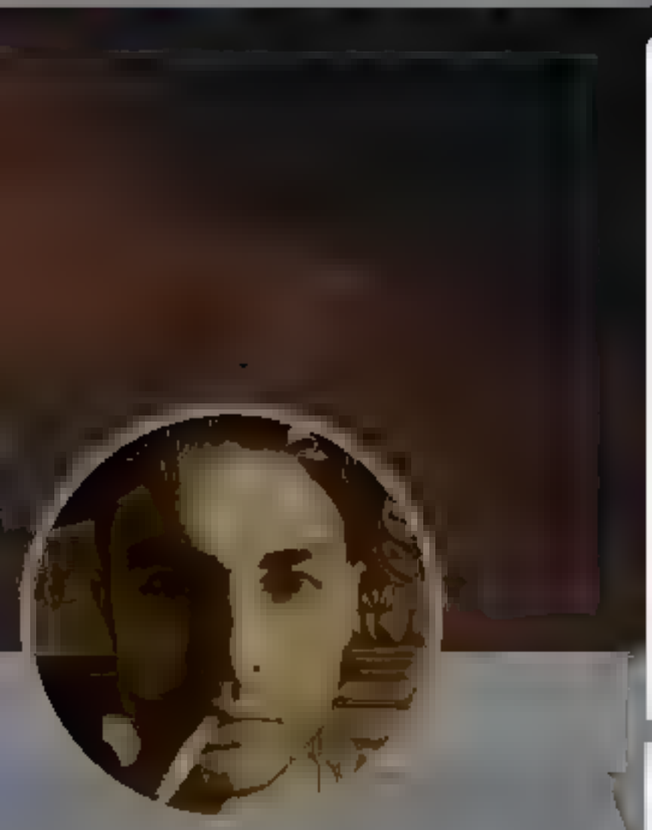
Music has become less varied & objectively worse every year. It's all begun to sounds the same.

Lyrics are dumber than ever before.



Computer algorithms can now predict the success of pop songs & write them.

Will we ever rediscover cultural authenticity?

The precedent is now being set by Big Tech that you can be banned for other people's comments below your posts. This would empower trolls to set people up who they don't like in order to have them removed. Absurd.

Insightful comments from @KEEMSTAR about how and why movies now seem to leave no lasting impression like they used to. Watch the video here: youtube.com/watch?v=va8rEw ..

Yesterday @PrisonPlanet uploaded a great video talking about today's music & movies are being over edited produced to the point they all are the same & leave no lasting impression on us. I noticed this to be true as well watch most all new blockbuster movies that come out & few have a lasting impression in me in fact 72 hrs after watching a new movie I forget what the movie was ever about. Sure if I re-watch the memories start coming back but its like my brain puts those memories in the recycling bin. Recently @Dinosaursaid1 highly suggested I watch the 1997 Jack Nicholson movie "As Good As It Gets" I watched it & 1 month after still remember everything about that movie. What a great movie!

And as far as modern pop music goes without a question its all over edited to sound the same. But listen to Elton John Tiny Dancer for a sec Why does 1971 song sound so damn good?

In closing the mainstream movies & songs from the past were made by people today they are made by robots

Paul Watson made such a great video on the topic I suggest you check it out https www youtube com watch v va8rEw ..IN

Note how Facebook actively tries to relegate the spread of political memes. This is because studies have proven the most effective memes come from the right.

This is election meddling. We need regulation to ensure a fair playing field. What happened to the executive order?

Discussing intolerant aspects of Islam or engaging in legitimate debate about mass migration doesn't make anyone complicit in mass shootings.

Just as all Muslims are not to blame for Islamic terror attacks.

The fact I have to point this out every time is fucking depressing.

Why did you strip out the context of his full statement to unjustly make it appear racist? This isn't journalism.

Eaton claims that he merely edited the quote "for reasons of space in print edition" but that what Scruton actually said was (clearly talking about the Chinese Communist Party — the party of government in China)

> They're creating robots out of their own people by so constraining what can be done. Each Chinese person is a kind of replica of the next one and that is a very frightening thing.

Assange exposed war crimes committed at the behest of neo-con warmongers.

It was the war crimes that harmed America's reputation, not Wikileaks.

This is perfectly in line with the non-interventionist, America first platform Trump ran on.

Trump must pardon Julian Assange.

In other words, not a free country.

Most of the people celebrating and justifying Assange's arrest are the same people who hysterically blathered about 'Russian collusion' for the past 2+ years and were proven spectacularly wrong.

Now we're supposed to trust their judgement?

It's a no from me.

It's time to find out whether Trump sides with his base or with the deep state that has been trying to subvert his presidency for the past two years.

Assange exposed war crimes committed at the behest of neo-con warmongers.

It was the war crimes that harmed America's reputation, not Wikileaks.

This is perfectly in line with the non-interventionist, America first platform Trump ran on.

Trump must pardon Julian Assange.

Assange exposed war crimes committed at the behest of neo-con warmongers.

It was the war crimes that harmed America's reputation, not Wikileaks.

This is perfectly in line with the non-interventionist, America first platform Trump ran on.

Trump must pardon Julian Assange.

A promo clip for the CBS legal drama show The Good Fight openly advocates using violence to silence political opinions.

The term "Nazi" has also lost all meaning to the point where it now means anyone who disagrees with the far-left.

So this is actively debunked every few years. It's not the soul food, it is the racism & lack of health care & the stress of poverty. Correlation is not causation.

> aloWars contributor Paul oseph Watson (who wrote the above story) tweeted a link to video that claims to show Muslims people celebrating the fire. Watson was amplifying content from a far-right personality named Damien Rieu.
> Critically, the video in question does not show what people on Facebook were reacting to. It s also difficult to know the religion of each person reacting to a video en mass. So we real y have no idea what was going on here, and there is no proof to back up this claim.

I've just debunked your claim that the video "does not show what people on Facebook were reacting to." Yes it does. They were reacting to the Notre Dame fire. Please correct your article as it is factually inaccurate @JaneLytv.

Note that these comments were screenshotted from just 2 threads. There's probably a lot worse that I didn't see.

Does this mean all Muslims are celebrating the fire? No.

Does it mean BuzzFeed is lying when they claim I am inventing this reaction?

Yes.

After lying by claiming "the video in question does not show what people on Facebook were reacting to." BuzzFeed now changes its story to say emojis are meaningless OK, how about the dozens of actual comments celebrating the attack in this video?

> The video purports to show positive reactions to a video of Notre Dame burning, implying that people with Arabic names are celebrating. This isn't the first time far-right personalities pointed to Facebook emojis to try and stroke anger. This also happened as far back as 2017 during the London bridge attack. During the Notre Dame fire the laughing face emojis were clearly in the minority and it's impossible to know why people chose a specific emoji, or for that matter the religion of people reacting to a Facebook video. It's also difficult to verify the authenticity of the accounts. Bottom line: Facebook emojis on a video do not tell us anything about a group of people.
> For example, we could find people with Arabic-sounding names reacting with the same emoji on a video about the New Zealand Mosque shootings:

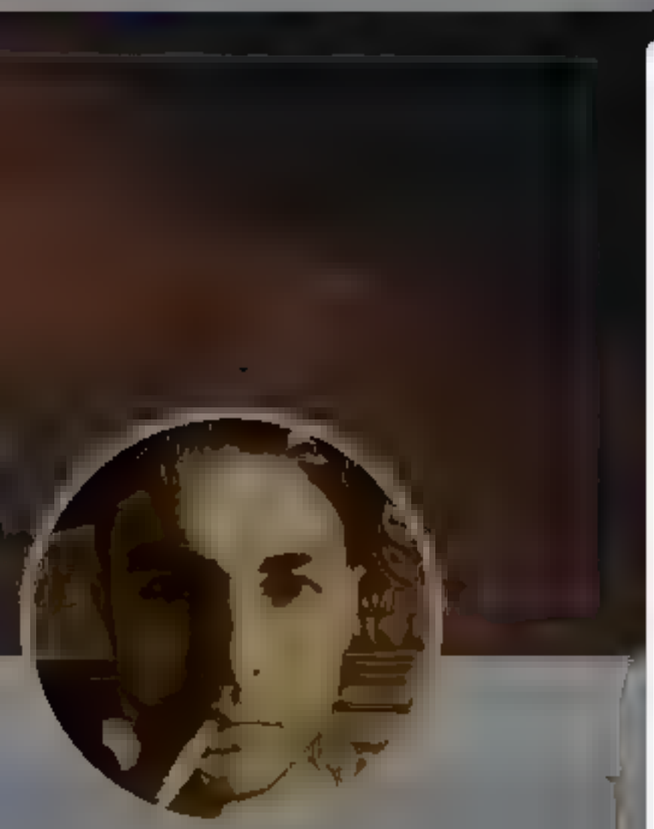
BuzzFeed lobbies for Big Tech to deplatform people for "misinformation".

Then engages in blatant misinformation by crafting an outright hoax that no one celebrated the Notre Dame fire. They did.



Under its own rules, BuzzFeed should be deplatformed.

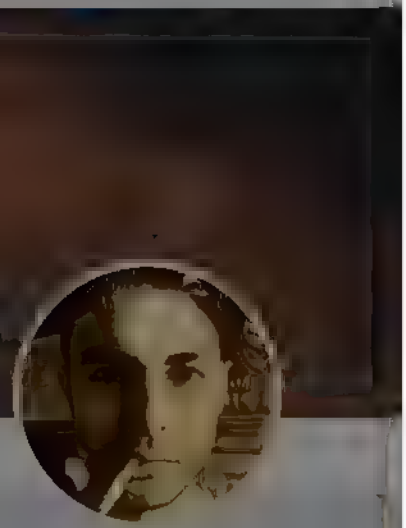
Why do those who preach the loudest about racism always choose to live in the whitest areas?

look at where they live, especially if they could live anywhere. Hillary and Bill Clinton are worth tens of millions of dollars and have free Secret Service protection for life. They could live safely in Harlem or East New York. Instead they bought a place in Chappaqua, which is less than 2 percent black.

Barack and Michelle Obama are also rich and surrounded by bodyguards. Their kids went to Sidwell Friends, so school zoning is irrelevant to them. Yet when they left the White House they still moved to the whitest neighborhood in Washington. Fewer than 4 percent of their neighbors are black, in a town that was known for generations as Chocolate City.

Mayor Bill de Blasio of New York is a tireless advocate for diversity, but not in his own neighborhood. Although he lives in Brooklyn, where one in three residents is African American, his own zip code is one of the whitest in New York. It's less than 5 percent black.



Massachusetts senator Elizabeth Warren, meanwhile, doesn't really live on an Indian reservation. She lives in Cambridge, Massachusetts, home of Harvard, as well as an enormous

Discussing intolerant aspects of Islam or engaging in legitimate debate about mass migration doesn't make anyone complicit in mass shootings.
Just as all Muslims are not to blame for Islamic terror attacks.
The fact I have to point this out every time is fucking depressing.

BuzzFeed lied about the reaction to the Notre Dame fire by claiming that a perfectly legitimate video showing respondents posting smiley emoticons in response to the blaze was a 'hoax'.

It wasn't a hoax.

Recently, we've been forced to endure the absurd claim by the UK media that you shouldn't be able to joke about rape.

You should be able to joke about anything. It's called free speech.

Joking about rape is not the same as advocating rape.

Why do I even need to point this out?

Emma Thompson flew 5,400 miles to take part in the 'Extinction Rebellion' protests in London.

That's 1.67 tonnes of CO2.

An astounding contribution to saving the planet.

Given that Christians are the most persecuted religious group on the planet, with vast numbers more Christians being killed by Islamists than vice-versa, why are global leaders afraid to even use the word "Christian" in their condolences?

Hillary Clinton

My heart breaks for New Zealand & the global Muslim community. We must continue to fight the perpetuation and normalization of Islamophobia and racism in all its forms.

White supremacist terrorists must be condemned by leaders everywhere. Their murderous hatred must be stopped.

Hillary Clinton

On this holy weekend for many faiths, we must stand united against hatred and violence. I'm praying for everyone affected by today's horrific attacks on Easter worshippers and travelers in Sri Lanka.

Barack Obama

Michelle and I send our condolences to the people of New Zealand. We grieve with you and the Muslim community. All of us must stand against hatred in all its forms.

Barack Obama

The attacks on tourists and Easter worshippers in Sri Lanka are an attack on humanity. On a day devoted to love, redemption, and renewal, we pray for the victims and stand with the people of Sri Lanka.

I had a really scary experience today on the 71 with a white man that sat across from me and made the white power gesture at me. I was on the bus alone and got really freaked out because I thought he was going to hurt me. My hands were shaking but I managed to get a picture of him. I've already contacted the SC Deputy but I don't know what else to do. I don't even know if he can be punished for this. Please, be careful if you see him around - I don't want anyone to get hurt.

The creepiest thing is not the bans, it's the threat that anyone else will be banned for talking about the people who were banned.

That's chilling. That's giant corporations enforcing their own Communist Chinese-style social credit system.

And leftists love it.

I have had so many kind messages from people defending me today. The ones who didn't defend me are notable by their absence.

Like I semi understand you not leaping to the defense of actual nutcases, but to blacklist the mild mannered, introverted English dude? Strange.

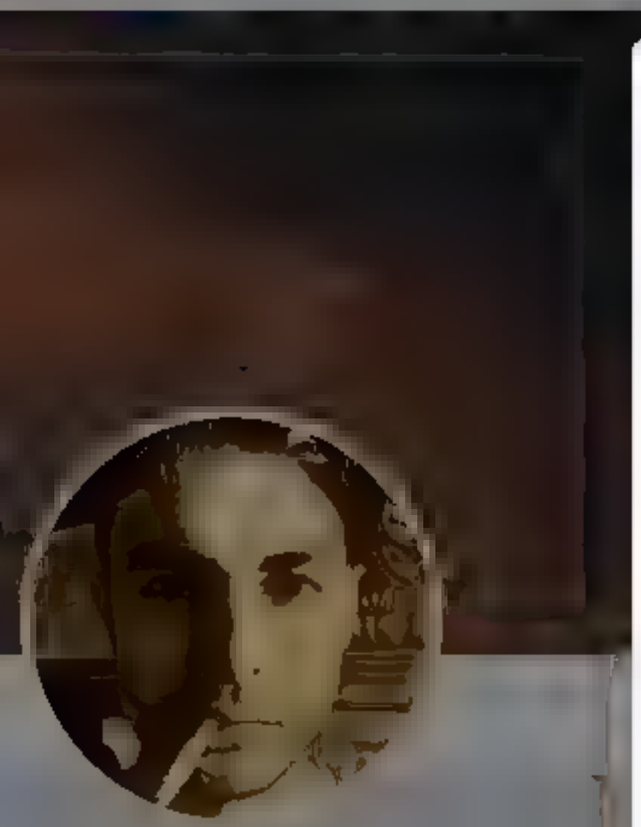
Merely appearing in a video or photo with someone Mark Zuckerberg doesn't like is now enough to get you banned by Facebook.



This is the Communist Chinese social credit system but instead controlled by giant corporations with more power than entire countries.

Chilling.

We see Pages on both the left and the right pumping out what they consider opinion or analysis but others call fake news We believe banning these Pages would be contrary to the basic principles of free speech

This is manifestly false.

10 years ago I had some silly beliefs.

I didn't 'build a career' on them.

I built a career calling out liars like you who work for CNN.

Imagine being someone like this guy, who failed as a conservative commentator and now spends his time and abuses his power lobbying for more successful people to be banned.

Sad!

You have zero understanding of the principle of free speech.

You are a tyrant.

Your rhetoric has no place in a truly free society.

Ana Navarro-Cárdenas @ananavarro

Wrong. I don't care if Right or Left, Farrakhan or Alex Jones. I applaud Facebook for banning ppl who violate policies by peddling hate, conspiracy theories & lies which trigger crazies & put ppl at risk. I'm not making it re ideology. It conveniently are. For me it's about hate. twitter.com/sandrakm123/st...

I have had so many kind messages from people defending me today. The ones who didn't defend me are notable by their absence.

Like I semi understand you not leaping to the defense of actual nutcases, but to blacklist the mild mannered, introverted English dude? Strange.

Which reporter is going to ask you about why you continue to be paid by the Qatar government - which stilll imprisons gay people - while you still pose like you have the moral high ground on anything?

> Mehdi Hasan @mehdirhasan

The creepiest thing is not the bans, it's the threat that anyone else will be banned for talking about the people who were banned.

That's chilling. That's giant corporations enforcing their own Communist Chinese-style social credit system.

And leftists love it.

Silicon Valley has a political world view, they want a society where the people are reliant on them. Controlling speech is clearly an early phase of enacting this vision. The only alternative is to create new platforms that they can't swallow into their sphere

The creepiest thing is not the bans, it's the threat that anyone else will be banned for talking about the people who were banned.

That's chilling. That's giant corporations enforcing their own Communist Chinese-style social credit system.

Thankfully, all of you can trust the Washington Post - which lied about the biggest, most harmful conspiracy theory of our generation - "Russian collusion" - but trust us because we abuse our power to silence anyone who points out our continuous, flagrant lies. Yeah OK.

I've met most of the people who the establishment tears down as "extremists". Even with their faults, almost all are cool. I've tried to meet with people on the left and they always pussy out because they're generally cowards. What does this tell you about who is in the right?

This from CNN which was published as a straight news article is clearly an opinion/activist piece. By any basic journalistic standard, CNN is now an activist site not a news organization.

> The president shared more than a dozen tweets about the subject on Friday night and Saturday morning. And he conveniently avoided the fact that some of the banned users are extremists who make a living by defending their fans

Even as Facebook claims it is removing "extremist" personalities and content from its platform, pages expressing support for Hamas, a terrorist group that has killed civilians, remain fully active.

Instagram is now "fact checking" memes. Most memes are satire/comedy and not intended to be "factual". Clown world.

> What does that action look like? Otway said Instagram will remove false posts from the Explore tab and its hashtag result pages. That way, it's harder for users to find bogus images and memes unless they already follow an account that's posting them.

A left wing NGO lobbied Facebook to remove 23 major populist Italian pages with 2.5 million followers just two weeks before the European elections.

This is clear election meddling.

Facebook is a publisher. Treat it like one. Remove legal immunity.

Widely recognised as inherently evil ever since.

Until 2018, when western leftists & Silicon Valley started using it to their advantage and it suddenly became virtuous.

Hi @mikeciandel a - I am neither a "white nationalist" nor a "conspiracy theorist".

I do not believe in an ethnostate and I think most conspiracy theories are dumb.

Please amend. Thanks.

Will be interesting to discover which one wins out on May 23rd. 😎

Crucial mistake in the milkshake meme wars today.

Robinson & Benjamin are long shots. Unless they win, the milkshakers come out on top.

However, Farage is guaranteed to win, and could be slurping on a giant milkshake in celebration come Friday morning.

Imagine those optics. 😂

I have thought long and hard about whether it's acceptable to laugh at Nigel Farage being hit with a milkshake and concluded that there are no flavours which aren't funny

They're all here

[illegible]

> Nigel Farage has been hit by a milkshake and a nation holds up a mirror to itself. Is it acceptable to laugh at Nigel Farage having had a milkshake thrown at him? Is an act of violence against a politician, however small, however laced in irony, okay? There are so many weighty questions that must be worked through with great care and patience. We'd best get started.
> Would it be funny if Nigel Farage were to be hit with a strawberry milkshake? Strawberry, soft heart of England. Wimbledon, straw boaters, narrow pants gaining under long shadows, longing for times that never were. A sudden explosion and a streak of this streaks suddenly down the flapping, pinstriped trousers of an angry, humoroptically thin-skinned charlatan. Yes it would.
> Would it be funny if Nigel Farage were to be hit with a chocolate milkshake? Chocolate, with its dark brown otherness. Other worlds, other places, other peoples, chocolate flying through the summer winds and then boom, there it is, a milky slurry, smashed upon its pinstriped destiny, its soft brown power encrimsoning the whitest face of them all. Again, yes.

Let's be honest. If right of center news outlets and huge corporations were tacitly endorsing assault (yes 'milkshaking' is assault, people have been arrested for it) against lefties, there'd be uproar, boycotts, protest marches.

You gotta marvel at the sheer gall of this.

The left has tried to re-define opinions (speech) they disagree with as "violence".

Meanwhile, they're also trying to re-define actual violence (while endorsing it) as speech.

This is an absolutely bombshell report. The British government caught staging reactions to Islamic terror attacks - signs, "spontaneous protests," hashtags and all.

They appear more concerned about optics than the safety of the country.

Remember in 2017 when they told us populism was dead?

Reality begs to differ.

The Chair of the Islamic Human Rights Commission just called gay conservative author Douglas Murray & Muslim reformist Maajid Nawaz "hate preachers" on live TV.

Ludicrous.

Panic over "online hate" is being exploited to silence mainstream opinions.

The same people who breathlessly call for their competitors to be shut down for spreading "fake news" just spread an obviously fake quote from President Trump to the point where it went completely viral and millions believed it.

How many of them apologized? Any consequences?

London is clearly the least "English" city in England.

Cleese is merely stating a reality that anyone who lives in London understands.

Nope, they just doxed Facebook and Facebook

On May 22, a Donald Trump superfan and occasional sports blogger from the Bronx named Shawn Brooks posted a video clip of Nancy Pelosi on his personal Facebook page. The clip showed Pelosi at her most exculpatory, stammering during a press conference as she voiced frustration over an abortive infrastructure meeting with the president. Brooks' commentary on the video was succinct: "Is Pelosi drunk?"

Thirteen minutes later, a Facebook official told The Daily Beast, Brooks posted a very different Pelosi video to a Facebook page called Politics

Doxxing and smearing private citizens who post joke meme videos about politicians on the Internet isn't journalism, it's corporate harassment. It's vicious and vindictive.
And the media wonders why there is so much antagonism towards them.

Will Manchester listen to Morrissey? #SilenceForManchester

Morrissey Official

13 mins

Celebrating my birthday in Manchester as news of the Manchester Arena bomb broke. The anger is monumental.
For what reason will this ever stop?

Theresa May says such attacks "will not break us", but her own life is lived in a bullet-proof bubble, and she evidently does not need to identify any young people today in Manchester morgues. Also, "will not break us" means that the tragedy will not break her, or her policies on immigration. The young people of Manchester are already broken - thanks all the same, Theresa. Sadiq Khan says "London is united with Manchester", but he does not condemn Islamic State - who have claimed responsibility for the bomb. The Queen receives absurd praise for her 'strong words' against the attack, yet she does not cancel today's garden party at Buckingham Palace - for which no criticism is allowed in the Britain of free press. Manchester mayor Andy Burnham says the attack is the work of an "extremist". An extreme what? An extreme rabbit?
In modern Britain everyone seems petrified to officially say what we all say in private. Politicians tell us they are unafraid, but they are never the victims. How easy to be unafraid when one is protected from the line of fire. The people have no such protections.

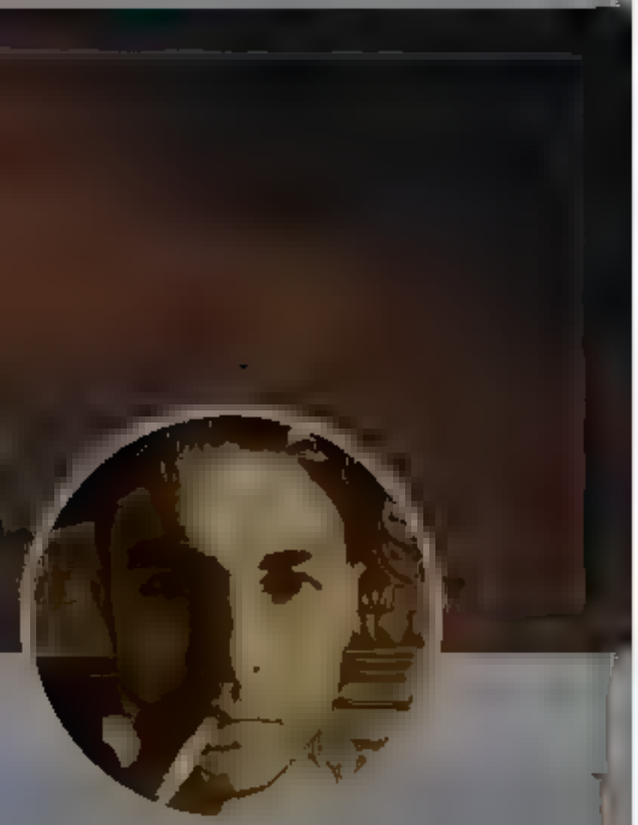
Some of the same voices currently denouncing Trump's UK state visit enthusiastically celebrated Nicolae Ceaușescu's 1978 visit (an actual dictator).

This includes the Guardian newspaper, which gushed over Ceaușescu at the time.



The then Lib Dems even gave him a puppy as a gift.

How about actually enforcing this shit regardless of political persuasion - then you might earn some actual respect?

The New York Times actually published an article suggesting that Philly D is radicalizing people to become right-wing extremists.

If this doesn't convince you that the media is generating deranged hysteria in an attempt to silence its competition, then nothing will.

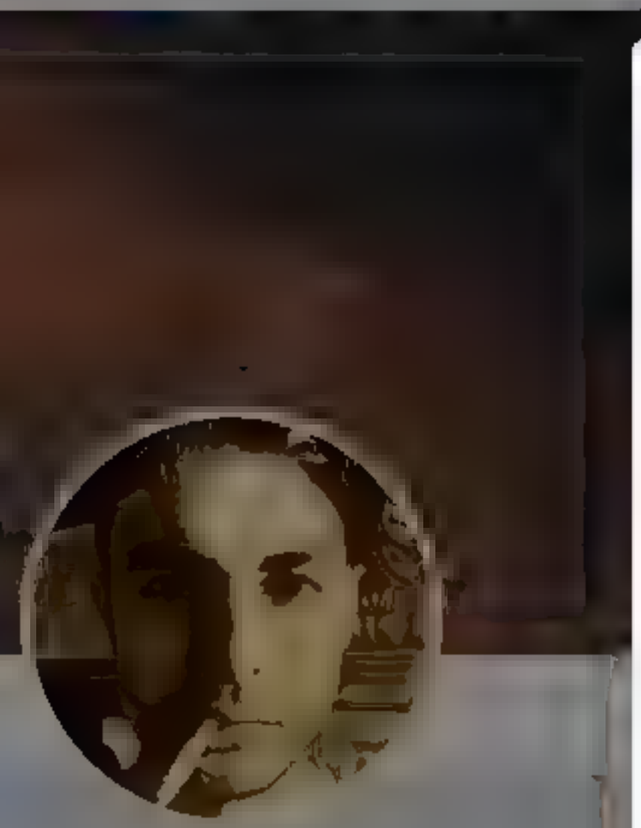
The data clearly shows that far-left news websites are radicalizing people.

Many of those same websites are going bust.



So what do they do?

Accuse their competitors of radicalizing people in an attempt to get them shut down.

Same tactic. Every time.

This is as stupid as saying every person who attended the same mosque as the Manchester bomber should be on a terror list.

Do leftists not see their utter rank hypocrisy every time this happens?

The lack of self awareness is staggering.

The conclusion of the NY Times piece is that you watching their videos eventually led to you becoming a liberal - the opposite of what you're claiming here.

But helping giant corporations generate hysteria to silence their competition is more important than truth I guess.

Deplatforming has zero to do with stopping hate, harassment, doxxing & violence.

Conservatives have been the primary victims of hate, harassment, doxxing & violence for years.

Deplatforming is about leftists silencing their enemies & corporations eliminating their competition.

We will always stand up for the rights of the people, and will never be bullied by lawsuits, even those brought by big corporate law firms with $1000/hour lawyers.
